LIBRARY

REPORT OF ANDREW KEOGH, Librarian.

To the President and Fellows of Yale University:

GENTLEMEN:

IHAVE the honor to report on the work of the University Library during the academic year 1931-32.

The work of the year has been largely that of settling down, of survey, and of reorganization. During the planning and the building of the Sterling Memorial Library the time of the Librarian and of his heads of staff was drawn upon heavily by the architect and the contractor. Then came the problems of transfer from various buildings, of the rearrangement of the books in new locations, and of the running of a new and greater machine in the most efficient manner. Plans that could not be carried out in the old library for lack of space or equipment or staff have been brought out for reconsideration, and some of them have been carried into effect. The staff has breathing space and elbow room for the first time in many years and is now able to see its work in a new perspective. The Library Committee has given an unprecedented amount of time and thought to policy, and in particular to the budget and to the making of rules for the use of the library in general and of the special rooms, studies, seminaries, and stalls. Many interested members of the administration, of the faculty, and of the student body have made suggestions for improvements, and some of these will be realized as time and money permit. The survey of the Library was continued, and the reports on cataloguing and on binding were submitted to the Library Committee.

THE BUILDING

WHILE the Library was officially opened on April 11, 1931, it was not finished on that date. The glazed screen between the delivery desk and the main reading room was put in during the summer. The Penniman study on the fourth floor, adjoining the books in Education, was opened to graduate students in that subject in October; it is now adorned by a portrait of James Hosmer Penniman, B.A. 1884, who gave and endowed the Penniman Library as a memorial to his parents. The Study Hall in the basement, called on the blue prints the "Commuters' Study" and intended for students who do not live in the dormitories, was also ready in October.

Careful estimates were made of the cost of keeping the stacks open at night, but the necessity of cutting the budget prevented any extension of hours at this time.

The removal of the Gymnasium and the Carnegie Swimming Pool has given much additional light to the main reading room, which will be one of the best lighted rooms in the University when the protective screens are removed from the windows upon the completion of Trumbull College.

Much of the success of the Library depends upon the upkeep and care of the fabric. Any building of this size and character requires janitors, charwomen, watchmen, elevator runners, mechanics of various trades, and much in the way of supplies. It is a pleasure to put on record that the relations between the Library and the Bureau of Maintenance have been most cordial and coöperative.

ACCESSIONS

THE book appropriation for the year 1931-32 was spent for solid, substantial works, periodical sets, and series, to round out the collections in the Library. Among the more important sets purchased were: the Annales des Falsifications et des Fraudes, 1908-1931; the Bulletin de l'Association des Chimistes de Sucrerie, 1883-1931; Die Chemische Analyse, 1907-1931, all these sets adding to our already rich collection of chemical periodicals. The Handlingar of the Svenska Akademien (1886-1930); the fundamental works, Corpus Medicorum Graecorum, and the Corpus Medicorum Latinorum; the Catalogue of the Rijks Ethnographische Museum at Leyden, Volumes 1-22, 1910-1931, were also purchased. We have added to our important collection of statistical material over two thousand documents (mortgages, leases, annual reports) of railroads, public utilities, and corporations, 1874-1927, also many thousands of financial reports of various dates from 1902 to 1930.

We were fortunate enough to secure a collection of over fifteen hundred pamphlets made by Monsignor Pisani, dealing with the French Revolution, many of them being contemporary publications; also, the twenty-five volume set of Sac-cardo's extremely important work, Sylloge fungorum omnium hucusque cognitorum, and Seitz's Macrolepidoptera of the world, 1909-1931, in sixteen volumes.

During the year 58,728 volumes and pamphlets were added, of which 28,213 were gifts, 12,067 exchanges, and 18,448 purchases.

More binding was done than in any previous year. The number of pieces bound was nearly 12,000, the expenditure amounting to $20,000.

GIFTS

The gifts to current income included $11,000 from Mr. Starling W. Childs, B.A. 1891, and Mrs. Childs for a special purchase not covered by the yield of the Childs Memorial, and $2,000 for books from an undergraduate who prefers to remain anonymous. Increases of existing funds included $1,000 from Mrs. Hadley towards the memorial to President Hadley; $520 for the George Parmly Day Fund; $500 for the Marjorie Walter Goodhart Memorial; $2,000 for the Henry Belin, Jr., Memorial; and $1,625 from the Class of 1890, Yale College, for the memorial to their classmate, Mr. May Humphreys. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Godfrey Connfelt gave $1,000 to establish a memorial to their son, Godfrey Pierson Connfelt, of the Class of 1926, the income to be used for books for the Linonia and Brothers Library. Mrs. Caroline B. Burrell gave $500 towards a memorial to her husband, the Reverend Joseph Dunn Burrell, D.D., of the Class of 1881; the income is to be spent for specific kinds of books in which Dr. Burrell was especially interested. Bequests included $50,000 from Mr. Samuel R. Betts, B.A. 1875, the income to be used in building up the collections he gave to the Library, and for general library purposes. Mr. Edward Bement, B.A. 1870, who gave us many years ago a collection of early and notable editions of Richard of Bury's Philobiblon, left $50,000 for the general purposes of the Library; the net amount of the bequest will be less. Mr. Henry F. Homes, B.A. 1868, left a quarter of his residuary estate, the income to be used for books; the amount actually received was $55,187. In the same way Mr. May Humphreys' bequest of $5,000 to the Library, which he served so devotedly for seventeen years, netted only $2,290, on account of the shrinkage in the value of the securities he left. The income is for books.

The foregoing record does not include gifts made through the Yale Library Associates, or the $14,937 left by Mrs. Jane E. Andrews and added by bequest to the Loring W. Andrews Memorial Library Fund administered by Yale College.

Many gifts of books and other scholarly material were received during the year, but the limits of this report make it possible to mention only a few in detail. The names of all donors are listed on pages 25-34.

Mr. Francis Parsons, B.A. 1893, gave a collection of manuscripts of Benjamin Silliman, Sr., including four diaries kept while he was an undergraduate at Yale. Mrs. Edward S. Harkness gave many interesting items from her personal library, including a collection of music owned by Emma, Lady Hamilton, the fourth folio Shakespeare, and a complete set of The Studio. Mr. Edward Ingraham, B.A. 1910, presented files of business correspondence of The E. Ingraham Company of Bristol, Connecticut, covering the latter part of the nineteenth century and the period of the World War. An autograph letter from George Meredith to Miss Forbes-Robertson was given by Mr. Gabriel Wells. The Library also received an anonymous gift of seven manuscript biographical sketches of persons in Florence in 1700, including the Medicis, in memory of Professor Bumstead. The papers of the late Senator Francis G. Newlands, B.A. 1867, were deposited in the Library by his daughter, Mrs. Edith Newlands Johnston.

Mr. George Dudley Seymour, honorary M.A. 1913, presented a copy of Sidney's Arcadia, London, 1598, which formerly belonged to Governor Simeon E. Baldwin, B.A. 1861, and the large remainder of the New Haven Improvement Report for distribution on exchange. Mr. John Humphreys Johnstone gave a fine copy of the edition of Pliny printed by Melchior Sessa, 1513, formerly in the library of the Gradenigo family, in memory of his cousin, May Humphreys, B.A. 1890. Mr. Starling W. Childs, B.A. 1891, in addition to the books bought from the fund he established in his father's memory, gave the set of Bacon's works used by Dr. Samuel Johnson in compiling his Dictionary. Mr. Robert C. Bates, B.A. 1923, gave the works of Edwin Arlington Robinson in first editions. Mr. Howard Mansfield, B.A. 1871, presented his collection of works by and about James McNeill Whistler. Dean Clarence W. Mendell, B.A. 1904, gave his collection of 492 volumes and 430 pamphlets by and about Tacitus. The Yale University Press continued its generous policy of giving its publications to the Library for exchange abroad, sending approximately three thousand volumes of current publications during the past year.

A gift expressing gratitude for a subscription of $800 sent by Yale to the Greeks in 1823 was a copy of a modern Greek-English Dictionary presented by the students of Athens College through Professor Phelps. The story is so interesting that we have asked Professor Phelps to tell it in some detail in an early issue of the Library Gazette.

Mr. Whitehead C. Duyckinck, B.A. 1865, gave his collection of coins, medals, and memorabilia in honor of his Class. In continuation of many previous gifts, Mr. William H. Owen, B.A. 1897, gave a set of the coins recently issued by the Vatican. Mr. Francis P. Garvan, B.A. 1897, presented his collection of American gold coins, numbering nearly eight hundred pieces, consisting of Federal issues of the twenty, ten, five, three, two and one-half, and one dollar pieces, and a series of territorial and state gold coinages. The coins are in remarkable condition, and many are extremely rare. Mr. Josiah H. Penniman, Provost of the University of Pennsylvania, presented a portrait of his brother, James H. Penniman, B.A. 1884, by Louis Hesselbusch, which is hung in the Penniman Memorial Library. The Oxford University Press gave a printer's frame which was used by the Press as early as 1668/9.

THE CATALOGUE

THROUGH the catalogue division a total of 206,322 cards were added to all catalogues, 140,329 of which were printed. In this accomplishment 28,334 monograph volumes and pamphlets, and 29,901 serial volumes were catalogued, transferred, or recatalogued. In addition, nearly 45,000 printed guide cards were added to the public catalogue and a set of 30,000 Library of Congress cards representing titles of books published anonymously were added to the official catalogue.

The Whistler Collection was classified and catalogued, and a careful inventory was made of the Fielding Collection. The Betts Collection of Yale Poetry was classified, a large assortment of Yale Memorabilia was arranged, and the difficult task of calendaring Yale manuscripts and identifying Yale pictures was undertaken. Final cataloguing attention was given to material to be included in the printed catalogue of the Speck Collection. New classification schedules were adopted for the Yale Collection of American Literature, and progress was made in revising the classification scheme for material in Theology.

New routines were prepared for the prompt cataloguing of new and rare books. Maps were assorted and a study made of their physical care and indexing. Several thousand transfers were made from Linonia and Brothers to the main collection, from the stacks to the Rare Book Room, and from the latter to the Yale Collection of American Literature. Much labor was devoted to the remarking of hundreds of books and cards, clearing up of incompletely catalogued work, revising card records to check with inventory, and supplying cards for three additional laboratory collections. Plans and estimates of costs were prepared for the cataloguing of books for the proposed college libraries, and a study was made of the need at Yale for full bibliographical description on the more important catalogue cards.

Early in March the Library, in coöperation with the A. B. Dick Company, undertook three months' experimentation with a mimeograph constructed for rapid production of typed catalogue cards. On the improved model of this machine the Library is now cutting stencils and reproducing satisfactory cards for secondary work requiring more than four cards per title. The elimination of much laborious proof reading and other time-consuming procedure leads the staff to welcome further experimentation. The head of the Division prepared a report on "The use of the Dexigraph in making an official catalogue" which was printed in the Library Journal of March 1, 1932. Still further progress in labor and time-saving devices is anticipated from the use of the Elliot-Fisher Continuous

Form Writing Machine, which in the accession division will supply the catalogue division with duplicated forms of all new orders for use in the prompt ordering of printed cards.

It is obvious that the Library has not yet recovered from the period of adaptation due to moving, expansion into larger quarters, development of new activities and services, and the reorganization of various departments. Experiments with new methods are under way, seeking speed in production and service which can only be obtained when the many processes involved are reduced to habitual routine. Much hard work has already been centered on experimentation and codification, which cannot be recorded in printed reports but which must be promoted in order to obtain a steady rate of effective production.

THE REFERENCE DIVISION

In reference work it is difficult to measure results. It is even more difficult to distinguish between reference and research activities. However, all effective reference service is closely allied in several ways to teaching, especially in the constant effort to teach readers how to find materials for themselves. In addition to these opportunities for instruction, the librarians attached to the reference division this year were able to undertake several important special projects. A few of these tasks may be mentioned: the manuscripts in three special collections were calendared, New Haven imprints were listed, portraits in the Yale Alumni Weekly and in the Connecticut Magazine were indexed, Yale holdings were checked in several special bibliographies, current periodicals were searched for books recommended by reviewers, much card revision checking was handled at the reference desks, and the usual preparatory work on faculty bibliographies was continued.

Records indicate satisfactory increases in the use of reference services provided, save in a nearer maximum use of the Reading Room and certain assigned studies and seminaries. A total of 2,132 stack permit cards (1,200 temporary) were issued to students of the graduate and professional schools and to research scholars and special readers. Permits for the use of stalls reached the total of 294. The reference collection, exclusive of bibliography and bound continuations, now totals nearly 5,000 volumes, and the division anticipates making many more important additions during the year. Materials shelved in the Bibliography Room were searched for items difficult to replace, and these were sequestered for convenient safe-keeping. Through interlibrary loan arrangements 467 books were borrowed from generous institutions for use by local readers, and 827 volumes were lent by the Yale Library to 173 other libraries.

Other activities reported upon by the reference division include Periodical Reading Room, Bibliographical Room, and New Book Room services; provision for the Summer School conducted by the State Board of Education and for the Educational Conference; exhibitions (to which reference is made elsewhere); and photographic reproductions of rare materials in print.

During the whole of the year covered by this report the Library has been busily engaged in experimental work of photographically reproducing books and manuscripts on 35 mm. film and in supplying readers with positive enlargements from the film negatives. Through the use of the Leica camera several new devices and interesting developments have resulted, and the near future holds much promise for further extension of this service. Upon invitation of the American Library Association an extensive display was made at the New Orleans conference of the variety of film reproductions made at Yale. When the number of negatives from a single title is sufficiently large, the actual cost of film reproduction is only slightly more than one-half of that involved in photostatic reproduction.

A number of exhibitions were arranged during the year with the view of enabling the University or the Library to recognize national or important celebrations, to join in greeting conventions held in New Haven, to illustrate lectures or to coöperate in University events, and to display important acquisitions.

Of the three exhibitions held to recognize national or important celebrations, by far the most conspicuous was the exhibition prepared for the bicentenary of the birth of George Washington. The exhibition was opened on February 22 and lasted several weeks, until the cases were needed for later exhibitions. The major events of Washington's life were illustrated by source material and original documents. A special section was devoted to Washington and his relations with Yale and New Haven.

A small exhibition was arranged on February 22, 1932, by Mr. Gilbert McC. Troxell in commemoration of the centenary of Lewis Carroll. The Library added to its own resources several volumes and miscellanea lent by Mrs. James Mason Hoppin.

In June an exhibition was prepared in the Yale Memorabilia Room to observe the one hundredth anniversary of the original conception of the electric telegraph by Samuel F. B. Morse, B.A. 1810. Added interest was given to the exhibition by a large number of family relics lent for the occasion by Miss Leila Livingston Morse. We took this opportunity to honor another son of Yale, the painter-inventor's father, Jedidiah Morse, B.A. 1783, the early American geographer.

In connection with conventions held at Yale during the year three exhibitions were prepared. In September, for the meeting of the Connecticut State Medical Society, there was an exhibition of medical books, which was held over for the meeting of the Beaumont Club in October. On November 16, 17, and 18, 1931, for the meeting of the National Academy of Sciences, rare and important scientific books and manuscripts were shown. Through the generosity of Dr. John Farquhar Fulton we were able to incorporate with the exhibition his remarkable collection of first editions of Robert Boyle and other rare scientific books from his library. Professor Richard S. Kirby also worked with us in preparing this exhibition. It covered the fields of chemistry, astronomy, physics, engineering, mathematics, and medicine. In June an exhibition of rare books in physics was arranged in honor of the meeting of the American Physical Society.

To illustrate a lecture on bookplates in April the Andreini collection of Spenceley bookplates was shown, as well as other bookplates in the Library's collection.

On Alumni Day the Yale Memorabilia Room contained an exhibition illustrating the history of Yale Buildings. At Commencement this room had an exhibition, made up largely of programs illustrating the history of drama at Yale. One alcove was devoted to the personal memorabilia of Ezra Stiles and his family, and a selection from the Morse exhibition was held over. Between the formal exhibitions in the Yale Room there was for a short time a display of epic poems written by Yale men.

The writings of the classes holding their fiftieth and twenty-fifth reunions were displayed in the Reserve Book Room. These attracted much favorable comment.

A selection of the rarer books purchased with the Penniman Fund was placed on more or less permanent exhibition in the Penniman Room.

Among acquisitions for the year the Library exhibited one hundred and thirty autographed and inscribed French portraits, which were given to the University by MM. Manual and Champion. With the portraits and translated inscriptions were shown representative writings of each author, and volumes concerning each statesman. In April the Library displayed the Tacitus collection of Dean Clarence W. Mendell. Except for about five hundred unbound pamphlets and dissertations the entire gift was exhibited. Memorabilia of the Class of 1865 given to the Library by the Class Secretary, Mr. Whitehead C. Duyckinck, selected and arranged by Mr. Rush, were exhibited in the Yale Room on Alumni Day and at Commencement.

In May and June an exhibition illustrating the history, practice, and art of bookbinding was arranged by Mr. William H. McCarthy, and was described by him in the July issue of the Library Gazette. It was to an unusual extent a loan exhibition, the pieces coming not only from graduates and other friends of the Library, but in some cases from interested undergraduates.

At the request of members of the faculty, the following exhibitions were arranged in the Rare Book Room to illustrate the course in Sophomore English: Chaucer, Malory, Caxton, etc.; Spenser; Bacon; Milton; Pope; and Byron. The Milton exhibition, which was unusually complete and impressive, commemorated the anniversary of his first appearance in print. The staff of the Rare Book Room also arranged special exhibitions of Dryden, Donne, and Scott; Miss O'Meara, Librarian of the School of Music, an exhibition of the works of Haydn; and Professor Harmon, one of papyri. There were also gathered together for the first time the books purchased out of the Childs Memorial Fund.

CIRCULATION DESK AND RESERVE BOOK ROOM

UNDER the supervision of the circulation division several important changes were made, resulting in improved service to readers at the lending desk and to research workers in the stack and studies. Date of issue labels were added to books in circulation, providing a convenient reminder for each borrower, and a chronological record of books in use was installed, reducing the time and labor in recording the charge, stimulating a much earlier return of books and a more prompt collection of fines for overdues. Lending rules were more carefully defined, particularly for readers not connected with the University. New procedures were adopted which considerably reduced the number of temporarily unshelved books bearing no charges. The staff is particularly grateful to the faculty for prompt response to the new form of lists sent to members at the end of the term. Cards of identification were issued for special readers, institutions, and members of the immediate household of faculty appointees. A total of 155,560 books was lent through the services of the circulation desk, an increase of nearly 30,000 over last year. This represented an increase of 21 per cent outside the building, 29 per cent in stalls and studies, and 26 per cent in temporary use. The number of books assigned for special reading in the Reserve Book Room was more than doubled this year, with a total of 11,216, shelved in 151 groups, with a student attendance as high as 150 at certain hours. By special arrangement lending cards were issued to 712 students who borrowed 1,896 books for overnight reading without loss of a single title. In addition to faculty members and graduate students, newspaper room permits were issued to 420 special readers. The Andrews Memorial Library lent 4,378 books to 532 selected students, a slight increase over previous years. However, the student drive for donated copies of texts no longer needed yielded a much smaller number of volumes this year, and requests for loans will undoubtedly be greater next year.

THE LINONIA AND BROTHERS LIBRARY

MR. HUNT reports: During the last year an additional 4,000 volumes have been removed from the shelves because they were worn out, unread, unsuitable, or outmoded. These, with the 5,000 transferred in June of last year, make a total of 9,000 books, or approximately 43 per cent of the entire library of 21,000 volumes as it then existed. In the same period about 2,000 new titles have been added (not counting 700 replacements). The total number of books on the shelves to-day is 14,000.

It is pleasant to note that although the library was reduced in size by over 40 per cent, the undergraduate readers increased by 18 per cent and the number of volumes issued to them by 26 per cent.

During the year the original catalogues of Linonia and Brothers in Unity have been mounted and set in a panel of the room, an historical painting by Trumbull has been borrowed from the School of the Fine Arts and hung over the fireplace, and the bronze bust of William F. Poole, B.A. 1849, has found a permanent resting place in one of the niches.

During February a Literary Contest was run in the News with books as prizes. This resulted in enough interest and publicity to warrant doing it again next fall.

THE GOETHE COLLECTION

PROFESSOR SCHREIBER reports: Fifty-one items have been added by gift and 190 by purchase. Among the latter was the first edition of the Goetz von Berlichingen, which completes the group of first editions of Goethe's major works. The first issue of the first edition of the first English translation of the Sorrows of Werter is another important addition. The Curator was America's official representative at the Goethe Anniversary Exercises at Weimar, and received from President von Hindenburg a medal in commemoration of the centenary.

THE RARE BOOK ROOM

PROFESSOR TINKER reports: The chief aim of the Rare Book Room during the current academic year has been, as heretofore, to serve the needs of students who consult material which, because of its unusual value, cannot be issued for use outside the building. Our most active period is from January to the first of May; this year, we have issued an average of 800 books per month during this period, not counting books "reserved" at the desk for students. A feature of the work has been the meeting of classes in the Rare Book Room for purposes which require the use of a large number of books at one time. Messrs. Keogh, Harmon, Oenslager, and Baur have made such use of our resources. The Sophomore Class faculty have asked for special exhibitions of the works of the authors studied in Sophomore English. Smaller exhibitions of the works of Chaucer, Malory, Bacon, Spenser, Milton, Pope, and Byron have therefore been arranged for the use of undergraduate students. Among these, that of the works of Milton is worthy of special mention because of its extent and inclusiveness. Every publication of Milton was represented.

Over a thousand volumes have been added to the Rare Book Room during the year by gift or by purchase. It is impossible here to list the names of our many friends and benefactors; there has been a steady flow of gifts from those who, knowing the opportunities that have been afforded them for quiet study, wish to make some tangible offering as an expression of their gratitude.

Over $3,500 has been contributed by the Library Associates since last October for the purchase of books and documents. This money has been expended by the Keeper of Rare Books, who has made an attempt to apportion the expenditure fairly among various fields. A group of volumes so purchased is always on display in the Room, where it may be seen as a permanent expression of our aims and methods.

One hundred and eighty-seven entries have been added to the catalogue of manuscripts. An attempt has been made to list the material in the following collections: The Arnold-Clough correspondence; the Wilson-Daniels correspondence; the letters of George Eliot; the Ruskin papers; and many groups of slighter importance.

Several hundred volumes have been transferred from the stacks to our shelves, and the catalogue references to them corrected accordingly. Among those are all volumes listed in the first 400 pages of the Short Title Catalogue which are in the Yale University Library. All books "charged to 'Z'" since 1925 have had the call numbers on the catalogue cards corrected and, where necessary, have been recatalogued and reclassed.

Perhaps the pleasantest feature of the work connected with our Room is the interest taken by friends in the development of certain of our collections. Gifts have been freely made in order to enrich our resources for the study of many different periods and of authors extending all the way from the Greek and Latin classics to living writers, English and American. Friends and patrons, therefore, have an essential share in the work and aims of the Rare Book Room.

THE FAR EASTERN COLLECTION

PROFESSOR ASA KAWA reports: The present statistics of the Chinese, Korean, and Japanese collections at the Yale University Library are approximately as follows:

Chinese—about 3,200 works in about 8,000 volumes;

Korean—about 60 works in about 160 volumes; and Japanese—about 16,000 works in about 9,000 volumes.

The disparity between the Chinese books on the one hand and the Korean and Japanese books on the other is due to the fact that many Chinese works are in large print and thin volumes, while most of the Japanese and Korean works are printed in small movable type and bound in thicker volumes. The difference thereby caused in the bulk of the books, also, is very great.

The Chinese collection has been made rather at random, and its increase has been slow. On the contrary, the Japanese collection has been made much more systematically and has been added to by more numerous, more extensive, and more continual gifts. This difference is owing, in part, to the continued inability of the Yale alumni in China to come to our help, caused no doubt largely by the unsettled political condition in that country; but also, and quite largely, to our lack of funds and of opportunities to go out in search of Chinese books which we desire. Many of our additions of Chinese books have in fact come from purchases and gifts from Japan.

Recent additions to the collections include the new edition of the Chinese dynastic histories, which has begun to be printed, and the new edition of the Buddhist Tripitaka in Chinese version, which is nearing its completion; the former is an undertaking of the Commercial Press at Shanghai, and the latter the result of labors of Japanese scholars. Both editions are being added to the older edition of each of these great works which is already in our possession.

There have been notable gifts of Chinese and Japanese books, including sumptuous works of high scientific value, from our Japanese benefactors, among whom may be mentioned both Houses of the Imperial Diet, the Archaeological Survey of the Government-General of Chosen, the Historiographical Institute of Tokyo Imperial University, Baron Sumitomo, the late Viscount Shibusawa, and Marquis Maeda. The last named is a descendant of the feudal lords who held the largest barony in Japan and who made a magnificent collection of rare books and manuscripts. Some of these the Marquis is gradually publishing in costly facsimiles and distributing only as special gifts; we are fortunate to be counted among the constant recipients of these munificent gifts.

LATIN AMERICAN COLLECTION

PROFESSOR LUQUIENS reports: The preparation of a Bibliography of Spanish American Literature in the Yale University Library is progressing slowly but surely. The manuscript will probably be ready for the printer in the fall.

During the past year many heretofore uncatalogued books belonging to the Spanish American Collection have been catalogued, recatalogued, or reclassified—probably more than five hundred. The majority of these were belles-lettres, but the amount of historical material recently catalogued is by no means small.

During the past year we have been extremely fortunate in having, in the person of Miss Ruth Sedgwick, a graduate student in our department, an enthusiastic, tireless, and skilful purchaser of books in Chile. Miss Sedgwick has been studying in Chile for two years on a fellowship created by the University of Chile, and she has devoted much of her time to searching for the books that we need to complete our already excellent collection of Chilean literature. She has sent us more than two hundred books.

I may add that the work of cataloguing these accessions, as well as most of the work on heretofore uncatalogued material, has been done by Miss Marion B. Nagle, whose skill and willingness to coöperate have been invaluable.

THE NUMISMATIC COLLECTION

THE REVEREND WILLIAM H. OWEN, Associate Curator of Coins, reports: All coins in possession of the University were removed from the old library building to the new in September, 1930. With the exception of the Owen and the Dillaye-Vann Collection, now in safes and a secure cabinet in the Numismatic Room of the Sterling Memorial Library, all pieces of the former University collection are kept in the vault of the same apartment. All our mediæval and modern pieces have been sorted out and so indexed that any desired specimen or group of pieces may be assembled for examination or study very quickly; and I am endeavoring to perfect plans for the merging of all the collections already in our possession into one general University collection, so recorded that the provenance of every one of our mediæval and modern coins, medals, and tokens will be preserved and immediately obtainable.

We have received numerous gifts of late, mostly of single pieces or of smaller groups of pieces. Many of these coins, tokens, and medals are of such excellence and rarity, however, that they are of real value to the Collection. We should especially record the following gifts: from Whitehead Cornell Duyckinck, B.A. 1865, a lot containing a considerable assortment of foreign and American pieces; and from Irving Dillaye Vann, B.A. 1897, the collection of his uncle, the late Henry Dillaye. This collection numbers, we judge, two thousand pieces—coins, tokens, and medals of many kinds and countries—many of which are very welcome additions to their respective series as represented with us already. When our collections of American tokens are merged and arranged, they are likely to form a group second to none in existence. An authority in the matter, the Reverend Clair F. Luther, B.D. 1892, has stated his belief that our collection of the coppers of Colonial Connecticut is of extraordinary condition and fullness.

THE CRAWFORD DRAMA COLLECTION

PROFESSOR CRAWFORD describes his collection as follows: The Crawford Drama Collection is principally a pictorial record of the modern stage from the close of the eighteenth century to the present day. In addition to the engravings, photographs, prints, and newspaper materials, various aspects of the drama are represented, such as pictures of dramatists, theatres and theatre plans, scenes from plays, the dance, the formal ballet, the puppet play, costume, musical comedy, and the cinema (silent and talking). There are also more than fifteen thousand playbills. The contemporary stage of England, and to some extent that of the Continental countries, is represented. The material is kept up to date by weekly accessions which average about fifteen hundred items in a year's total. The collection is intended as a practical working basis for the study of the technical side of the theatre and for study of the contemporary history of the drama. It contains, therefore, some material not usually included in theatre collections assembled for purely library purposes.

THE LIBRARY COMMITTEE

THE term of office of four members of the Library Committee expired on June 30, 1932. Professors Angier, Arthur J. Hill, and Lafayette B. Mendel were reappointed for three years, and Professor Kraeling takes the place of Professor C. C. Torrey, who becomes Professor Emeritus. The Library will not lose Professor Torrey's services entirely, for he has consented to serve for three years as Associate Curator of Coins. The hearty thanks of the Librarian for the advice and assistance of the Committee has been expressed in an earlier paragraph.

THE STAFF

FROM 1905 to 1912 there were three members of the library staff of full professorial rank giving their whole time to the institution. From the resignation of Mr. Dexter in 1912 to the death of Mr. Schwab in 1916 there were only two of that grade, and only one from Mr. Barr's death in 1925 to Mr. Rush's coming last year. The Library is now as well off in this respect as it was twenty years ago, and the Librarian records with gratitude the action of the Corporation in making a major appointment at a time when all expenditures were being scrutinized to see where savings could be effected. When better times come, the Librarian will renew his request for more men and women of the highest academic standing, for it is only by having them that the Yale Library can maintain its leadership.

The new professorial appointee is Mr. Carl L. Cannon, a graduate of the University of Kansas and of the New York State Library School, who of recent years has been in charge of the accessions in the New York Public Library system. Mr. Cannon came on February 1, and after he had become familiar with the accessions division there was put into effect an experimental reorganization of all the departments that have to do with the accession of material—purchase, gifts, exchanges, duplicates, and binding. Mr. Ginter took charge of the binding department, which had been in the hands of Mr. Gruener in his later years, and there is now an assistant whose sole duty is to look after and develop exchange relations.

Mr. Rush, who joined the staff last year as Associate Librarian, took over his duties so quickly and so effectively that the Librarian felt he could take his long-delayed sabbatical leave, and the Corporation granted his request for leave of absence from the middle of November to the middle of April. Many libraries were visited during his trip, including the Huntington Library, the British Museum, and the libraries of Oxford and Cambridge universities.

As Mr. Rush was in charge of the Library during the Librarian's absence, he obtained a first-hand knowledge of the administrative problems confronting us and of the working of the various departments of the Library. It is the Librarian's hope that Mr. Rush will continue and extend his supervision of the normal operation of the Library, and so make it possible for the Librarian to give more attention to the alumni and to the Sterling Professorship of Bibliography.

Owing to the increasing use of the Library, the work of the delivery desk was restored to its former separate status and placed in charge of Mr. Kenefick, who has had long experience at the desk.

During the year several new curators were appointed. The Reverend William H. Owen, who gave us his collection of coins in 1927, who has added greatly to it since that time, and who has made many visits to the Library to arrange and describe our numismatic pieces, was appointed Associate Curator of Coins. The same title was given to Professors Baur, Bellinger, and C. C. Torrey, all of whom have helped in various ways to build up the collection and make it useful. Mr. Troxell was made Curator of the Yale Collection of American Literature, and Professor Stanley T. Williams, Adviser in American Literature. Mr. W. Redmond Cross, B.A. 1896, was appointed Keeper of Maps. Professor Crawford, who gave his collection on the Modern Drama, was appointed its Curator. Professor Arthur B. Darling was appointed Keeper of the Newlands Collection.

Other appointments include Mrs. Ruth Wolf Aaronson, Assistant Cataloguer; Margaret Currier, B.A. Mount Holyoke, Assistant Cataloguer; Mrs. Leona Elder, Assistant Cataloguer; Mrs. Frances R. T. Evreinoff, B.A. Mount Holyoke, Assistant, Accessions Division; Frances Bernice Field, B.A. Carleton College, Serial Cataloguer; Johanna Louise Hochberg-Hiller, Assistant Cataloguer; Jennette E. Hitchcock, B.A. Smith College, Assistant Cataloguer; Loeta Lois Johns, M.A. University of Washington, Cataloguer; Paul Quinn, B.A. Harvard, Assistant, Circulation Division; Lorine C. Sears, B.A. Bryn Mawr, Assistant, Reference Division; Barbara D. Simison, B.A. Smith College, Assistant Cataloguer; Jeanette Starin, B.A. Smith College, Assistant Cataloguer; and Emma Elizabeth Stephenson, B.A. University of Oregon, Assistant, Reference Division.

The resignations included Miss Hjørdis Eriksen and Mr. William H. McCarthy.

It is with sorrow that the Library reports the death on August 7 of Mr. Henry R. Gruener, better known to the older alumni than to those of recent years. Mr. Gruener had given the Library almost fifty years of service, and his working day had more hours in it than were expected from him. The staff turned to him to find uncatalogued material, and he often knew the provenance of items that had come before regular records were kept. He was one of the most trustworthy and loyal assistants the Library has ever had.

THE LIBRARY ASSOCIATES

THE annual meeting of the trustees and officers of the Associates was held at the home of Mr. Frank Altschul, B.A. 1908, on February 25. Reports were made by the Librarian, the Associate Librarian, and the Keeper of Rare Books. It was planned to issue a special Associates' number of the Library Gazette, and the date of this number has since been fixed as October, 1932. As a copy of the October issue will be sent to any Yale man on application, it is thought unnecessary to describe in this report the activities of the organization during the year. It is not possible, however, to let this opportunity pass without expressing appreciation of the service the group is rendering to the University.

It is gratifying to know that there were last year several undergraduate members of the Associates. It is the Librarian's hope that this student interest will continue.

In October, 1924, the library, now consisting of over 5,000 volumes, was placed on permanent deposit. The Society appoints a librarian for the collection, which is kept as a separate unit in the University Library building. The books are available to members of the Society and to others with the approval of the librarian. The library consists of textbooks to be lent gratuitously for use throughout the year to students recommended by the Bureau of Appointments. The original gift has been added to from time to time, by gifts from his widow, and now amounts to $23,338.32. The collection is increased by contributions of textbooks from students. Obsolete textbooks are sold, and the money received is used for the purchase of new books. The additions by gift to the library in the year ending June 30, 1932, were about 627 volumes, and the additions by purchase for the same period were 285 volumes. The total number of textbooks in this collection is about 7,500.
